

We are delighted to invite you to an exclusive celebration on Wednesday, 5 November for an afternoon of special lectures and networking to celebrate the launch of The Leicester Media School at De Montfort University.

The School brings together more than 1,600 students, 75 experienced academics and specialist research groups from across technical and creative disciplines.

We are proud of our diverse suite of courses, ranging from music and audio technology, media design production, film and media and journalism. The courses are taught at foundation, bachelor's and master's levels, including PhD.

We have strong links with industry leaders, including the BBC, and many of our courses are accredited by recognised professional bodies. We produce students of the highest calibre who progress into careers with organisations including NASA and BMW.

Our guest of honour, Terry Bamber, is an established production manager and assistant director with notable credits including the last six James Bond films, World War Z and Lara Croft: Tomb Raider.

The order of events is:

1.30pm	Arrival
1.45pm	Official Opening, Bede Island, DMU campus
2pm	Special guest lecture by Terry Bamber
3pm	Leicester Media School showcase
4pm	Reception Trinity House, DMU campus

Booking is essential, as places are limited. Please visit dmu.ac.uk/LMSLaunch or call 0116 257 7500 to confirm your attendance and tell us of any dietary requirements. If you are unable to attend the whole event, but would still like to participate for part of the day, please notify us when booking.

We look forward to welcoming you on campus and hope you will help us celebrate.

Best wishes,

Professor Jason Lee

Head of Leicester Media School
