Benedict Drew

Fri 9 Aug – Sat 7 Sep
Phoenix and Two Queens gallery

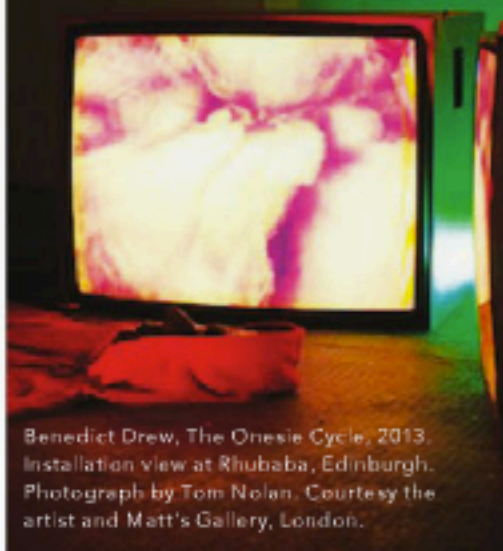

Phoenix is working with Two Queens gallery to present a solo show by Benedict Drew, one of the UK's most exciting new contemporary artists.

Working across a range of media, Benedict Drew explores our relationship with technology, creating fantastical worlds that are both mesmerising and unsettling.

At Phoenix we'll be presenting a newly-commissioned exhibition and online artwork, while Two Queens will be showing Drew's recent film and sculptural installation, The Onesie Cycle.

Nominated for the prestigious Jarman Award in 2012, Drew has exhibited widely both nationally and internationally. He is represented by Matt's Gallery, London.

Two Queens is an artist-led gallery and studio nestled just round the corner from Phoenix in the heart of Leicester's cultural quarter.

Humans are scary. Every wolf knows that. Rufus is a canine of simple tastes, he likes vegetarian food, fairy tales and a good game of Scrabble. When he sets out to find Grandma's Cottage he instantly regrets his decision. The forest is cold and dark and he misses his spice rack. Worst of all there's something out there ... something in a red hood!

Produced and performed by Phoenix's resident theatre group BigMix, Little Red is a humorous twist on the much-loved Little Red Riding Hood tale, bringing together live performance and vivid digital animation.
